TRIAL POSTPONED.

Constable Angle and Detective Pettis Do Quick Work.

Pettis Do Quick Work.

'Squire Angle postponed the hearing of Cephas Couch and Emmett Carrington, of the gang of negro thleves, who robbed the house of Rev. A. E. Jeffries (colored), in Fulton, several days ago, and secured two silver watches, because the police are now hot on the trail of the other members of the clique.

One of the watches has been secured and returned to the preacher.

The way Constable Angle trailed down the thleves has won the commendation of the Henrico authorities. Detective Pettus also did quick work in apprehending Carrington in Newport News. Fifteen minutes after Constable Angle telegraphed him of the negro's probable whereabouts, the detective had him under arrest.

Where to Get Home Paper.

New York, the city of surprises, has omething unique in the way of newstands, in fact a "universal provider" something unique in the way of leaves stands, in fact a "universal provider" has sprung up in that city, a venture of Arthur Hotaling, who conceived the idea of meeting the demands of the multitudes of visitors to the St. Louis Exposition by supplying their home papers to all who wanted them. This energetic newsdealer has started up a stand at the northwest corner of Broadway and Thirty-eighth Street, New York City, where every peper of any importance that is published in America can be purchased. Virginians visiting New York will do well to remember that even away from home they can without any trouble get the Times-Dispatch at this point, where we wish him the success he deserves.

To Advertise Counties.

At a recent meeting of the board of governors of the Jamestown Exposition, Mr. John Whitehead was appointed to take charge of the work of securing the appropriation from each county in Virginia, to be used for advertising its commercial resources. Voting for the Queen of Beauty at the Carnival Already Commenced.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) PETERSBURG, VA., June 23 .- A pub lished communication to-day from the King's Daughters thanks the City Council most gratefully for its recent $600 appropriation for employing a trained nurse to work among the poor of the city, and announces that the organization, nurse to work among the poor of the city, and announces that the organization, on whose petition the money was appropriated, has secured the services of Miss Mertindale, formerly of Petersburg, and a graduate of the Nurses' School at the Home for the Sick. The letter outlines the nature of the work, emphasizing the importance and value of instructions as to sanitation, food and ventilation in homes of the poorer classes.

Judge Mullen to-day heard arguments in the Hustings Court on the injunction recently granted by that court, restraining the city engineering department and the paving contractors from cutting down shade trees in front of the Southern Female College, A. K. Davis, president of the college, is represented by Davis and Davis. The motion to dissolve the injunction was argued by City Attorney Géorge Mason.

The voting for the most popular young lady in the "Queen's Contest," feature of the Grays' Carnival, to be held next week, has already begun, ballot boxes having been placed in various sections of the city. The names of the candidates have not been divulged, and the votes will be counted in public on one of the evennings of the carnival.

The Phoenix Bible Class, of High Street Methodist Church, the largest class of the kind in the city, will hear an address at their service to-morrow morning by Rev. R. W. Barnwell, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

How Artists Use Lines

Seventh of the Series of Articles on Pen and Ink Drawing, Which The Times-Dispatch is Publishing, Each Illustrated with a Picture by Charles Dana Gibson-

Conspirators.

In drawing girls, Charles Dana Gibson was fond of varying his type. "The Girson Girl," whom the maldens of Americal have accepted as their collective portrait, and to whom they have been trying to live up ever since sho was hailed as a type, was the artist's ideal of what a woman's face should be. Just before bidding farewell to the "American Girl," Gibson fold the writer the idea that the girl who is now his wife, was the model from which he had drawn his plotures was utterly erroneous; the contrary was true he said; he had formed in his mind an ideal, which he drew over and over again, and when he met Mas Langhore her lengthed the first and when he met Mas Langhore her lengthed that at last he had found his ideal woman; so he woode her and won her. But those who are familiar with Gibson's work must know that he drew many types of woman, only one of which foodid by any possibility have been his idea.

The nicture that accompanies to-day's ideal woman; so he woose her and won her. But those who are familiar with Gibson's work must know that he drow many types of woman, only one of which could by any possibility have been his idea.

The pleture that accompanies to-day's paper shows a type that is rather rare with the Gibson—the languorous, Oriental beauty. "Conspirators" is the name he gave to it. It shows a dark, handsome woman and a Cupid, in intimate conference, the little god's arm around her neck, and his lips close to her ear, that she may alone hear the secret plans he is suggesting to her. It is a simple little drawing, and it involves no deep thought to comprehend, for woman and Cupid have ever been conspirators, and their plots are as potent to-day as they were when Delillah invelgled Samson to his ruin.

The Cupid is a remarkable illustration of the effect that can be produced by a few perfect lines. To draw in pure outling is more difficult than to portray lights and shadows by means of masses of graduated lines, tor roundness and perspective must be suggested, they cannot be drawn. This end is attained by the varying strength of the culline, but this must be absolutely true; it cannot waver, Acquisition of Large Blocks of Property Point to a Union Depot in Norfolk.

PUBLISHER'S OFFICE CLOSED

P. F. Collier Moves His Norfolk Branch Office to Washington.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
NORFOLK, VA., June 23.—The Tidewater Railway is buying other large blocks of property adjoining its recent East Main Street purchase, obtained for the announced intention of putting thereon a passenger station and freight depot,
The railway, which is being built by Standard Oli interests, has announced that it would not be averse to converting its East Main Street property into a union station, and the business intercate of Norfolk and some of the other railroads are now considering plans for getting such a station there. With this last acquisition of lands by the Tidewater, the site is now plenty large for getting such a station there. With this list acquisition of lands by the Tidewater, the site is now plenty large for such a station, and it is now regarded that a union station there is decidedly probable.

More than $90,000 was expended by the railway on these last purchases.

The local office of the publishing house of P. F. Collier, of New York, which has been maintained in this city for many years, has been closed. The business heretofore transacted torough the office will be done through the Washington office of the big house.

There were almost a score of employes of the local office. Eight of the young women in the office and three men have been discharged; and others connected with the office will either shortly be sent to other fields, or else their services will be dispensed with.

receivers of the Bay Shore railway, Fedreceivers of the Bay Shora railway, Federal Judge Waldill to-day signed an injunction order restraining the Norfolk Railway and Light Company, its officials and employes from in any way interfering with the terminal properties or the management of these properties which adjoin the Norfolk Railway and Light Company's Cean View researt properties.

agoment of these properties which adjoin the Norfolk Railway and Light Company's Ocean View resort properties.

R. Lancaster Williams, president; Edwin C. Hathaway, general manager, and Richard Hunt and Thomas M. Walker employes of the Norfolk Railway and Light Company, are cited by the injunction order to appear in court Friday, July 13, at twelve o'clock noon, to show cause why they should not be fined for contempt of court for tearing down, or permitting to be tern down, lights and signs of the Bay Shore railway. These lights and signs were intended to attract Ocean View patrons to travel on the Bay Shore cars, the lines of which are operating in opposition to the Norfolk Railway and Light Company's Ocean View line.

Though the Bay Shore road, when sold at auction some time ago was supposed to have been bought by representatives of the defendant line in this action, the holding up of the sale by the Burr liftgation in the supreme court of the United States, at Philadelphia, has prevented the delivery, and the Bay Shore is still being operated by the receivers, the purchasers deriving no benefit from its large business of the present season.

"THE MAN BETWEEN"

Will Undoubtedly Make a Sensation.
When "Robert Elsmere" was published, nearly a score of years ago, the fame of it at once swept the English-speaking world. For months nothing else, was talked of. Sermons were preached on it, men forgot business to discuss it. Nearly one million copies were sold in the United States alone. No novel since then has aroused the same interest, for, heretofore, no novel of its peculiar nature flassince been published.

But "Robert Elsmere's" successor—perhaps it is not too much to say—"Robert Elsmere's" successor—perhaps arrived.
And the new novel, which is certain to supplant that earlier work in piblic inmony, is "The Man Between," by Amelia E. Barr.

That this is a daring claim to make for any modern work of folion is admitted. But the proof lies in the book itself. Not that "The Man Between" seeks notoriety by attacking religion or religious institutions. On the contrary, it is never guilty of such bad taste. But the story itself demands consideration for certain clerical and social themes that are as startlingly new and undiscussed as were the topics which "Robert Elsemere" so audaclously dealt with.

Nor is it exaggeration to say that Mrs. Barr's is the greater book of the two. It is tremendously virile, stirring speculation-compelling narrative of up-to-date people and up-to-date vicissitudes. The plot is exciting and absorbing enough to attract such persons as do not care to go deeply into such more weighty considerations as the book brings up, but who, nevertheless, wish to read a novel that overy one else is talking about. It is a many-sided narrative, and each side will call for discussion and profound inferest, both in England and America.

"The Man Between" is a book that will be read and talked of. It will live for many a day. It is easily the strongest of placing new copyrighted flection in this way, and while their edition is manufactured in the usual $150 style, thus, will alip a whole dollar off the price, and hand out the books at only 50 cents

TOBACCO CROPS RIDDLED

St. John's Day Celebrated at the Oxford Orphan Asylum With Exercises and Dinner.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) DURHAM, N. C., June 23.-Fire last night; several miles from the city, de-stroyed the lumber mill belonging to Mr. Josiah Adkins. The nill contained 2,000 feet of lumber, and the loss is estimated at $7,000. The origin of the fire is sup-posed to have been a spark from a passing train. The flames spread rapid-ly, and the mill and contents were soon burned. night; several miles from the city, de-burned.

Reports have reached this place from Orange and Caswell counties that a hall-storm early Wednesday morning destroyed numbers of crops of tobacco, oats, corn and cotton. The farmers say it was the most disastrous storm that has occurred in a number of years. The storm lasted an hour or more, and the stones were of unusual size. Mr. S. F. Pitiard, a farmer near Chapel Hill, lost 0,000 hills of tobacco, and the crops in this section next fall will be short. The hall in Caswell in rifts at one time during the storm was from two to three feet deep.

The annual St. John's Day celebration, at the Oxford Orphan Asylum was observed to-day at that place. The exercises were presided over by Lleutenant Francis D. Winston. General B. tenant Francis D. Winston. General E. Royster of Oxford, made the welcome address, which was responded to by a number of visitors. The annual address was delivered by Colonel Sol. Gallart, of Rutherfordton. Exercises were also rendered by the orphans, and dinner was served to the visitors in the old-fashioned style, at the asylum.
